The Inside Story

Outdated Technology Is Expensive And Dangerous

This medical sector client needed someone to modernize their outdated IT systems—that's why they called Realized Solutions.

🔷 Who

A healthcare provider group that was struggling to get their work done using outdated IT systems.

🔷 The Problem

This group of providers and practitioners needed to update their technology and weren't sure where to begin. They had been dealing with small issues here and there, finally recognizing that those small losses in productivity were adding up. They came to a decision that they needed to invest in updating their system, as it was critical to their business and they wanted to eliminate the challenges caused by technical debt. They needed someone to modernize their IT systems.

The system was a web-based system developed many years ago, and was now starting to break down. It was rapidly becoming more and more dysfunctional because the underlying framework and controls were outdated. Security had become a concern as well, with the system using older, vulnerable components that were not maintained or kept up to date.

In order to update their aging and error-prone technology, they got in touch with Realized Solutions.

🔷 The Solution

The medical group enlisted RSI because of the expertise and experience we offered. They wanted an updated system that would support their operations for years to come, and knew they could rely on Realized Solutions to deliver.

We discussed their needs, assessed their systems, and updated them with a more modern, robust, and reliable foundation. We deployed an updated .NET framework, mitigated their present security risks by implementing a range of best practices, and rewrote everything using MVC architecture. This ensured it would be easier to maintain in the future.

How Realized Solutions Solved This Client's Problems

With their newly upgraded IT systems, this group of practitioners now have a productive workplace environment. We have built a highly secure and scalable system for the client while continuing to identify opportunities for cost savings by reducing inefficiencies that an old architecture produced.

They now have a robust IT system that meets their specific needs, and they got it without having to spend their own time doing research or managing the project. They know that Realized Solutions will keep them current.

We will do the same for you—don't struggle with old or borrowed technology any longer. Talk to the Realized Solutions team to start upgrading your systems:
